ABNORMALITIES OF SLAYERS ADMITTED IN CHICAGO TRIAL

JUDGE STROUP IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Elyria Jurist at John Hopkins' Hospital With Little Hope For His Recovery

Announcement has been made that Attorney Lee Stroup, is in Johns Hopkins University hospital, Baltimore, in a critical condition, with probably no chance of recovery.

Mr. Stroup was taken ill at his office some weeks ago, and was taken home, and later was in a Cleveland clinic. Finally it was determined as a last resort to take him to the hospital in Baltimore where he could receive the best of care and the advice and treatment of the country's best expert surgeons. An operation was performed and a growth found near the base of the brain, which was of such a nature that he could not be helped.

He was a former judge of the court of common pleas, and has been a leading member of the bar for years.

WOMAN KILLED IN OBERLIN MISHAP

Former Huron County Commissioner and Greenwich Woman Injured When Broken Wheel Upsets Auto

OBERLIN, July 28.—A fatal automobile accident took place two miles north of this city late yesterday afternoon, when the rear wheel of the auto broke, throwing it into the ditch where it turned over.

Mrs. Sherman Noble, of Shiloh, was killed and her husband, who is in the hospital suffering with concussion of the brain, but will recover. Mrs. Kent Jenne, of Greenwich, was with them and she was taken to the hospital suffering with a cut on the head and bruises.

Mr. Noble was formerly commissioner of Huron county, and is well known in this section.

SEN. CABOT LODGE, NOTED STATESMAN, IS SERIOUSLY ILL

BOSTON, July 28.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, one of the best known men in American public life, is in serious condition today in the Charles Gate hospital following an emergency operation for bladder trouble.

Sensor Lodge is 74 years old and the attending physicians feared that his advanced age might retard recovery. He was stricken at his summer home at East Point Nahant, and removed to the hospital where his ailment was diagnosed as an obstruction of the bladder.

Undergoes Operation
Doctors ordered an immediate operation. It was performed at 4:30 Sunday afternoon. It was understood that the surgeon, in consultation with other practitioners, decided another operation would be necessary.

Sensor Lodge was resting as easily as could be expected during the morning. It will probably be 12 hours before the attending physicians can decide definitely whether the Senator can recover.

Ever since his return from Washington a fortnight ago, Senator Lodge has been in precarious health and has been under the care of Dr. Frederick Winslow, of Boston. He suffered a relapse Sunday and Dr. Cunningham was called.

CRIMINAL COURT, CHICAGO, July 28.—Ignoring and somewhat contemptuous of the preliminary report of the defense finding Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb having records of "abnormalities since childhood," the state went methodically ahead today in the courtroom of Justice R. Caverly building ever higher the mountain of evidence upon which it hopes to send the young culprits to the scaffold for the murder of little Robert Franks.

Experts Testify
Handwriting experts, typewriter experts, policemen, taxicab chauffeurs, and others went in and out of the witness box today, each contributing his bit to the mountainous pile of information already collected in the case.

The handwriting and typewriting experts, R. E. Tyrrell of Milwaukee, and Jay F. Wood of Chicago, came to the stand building with portfolios and documents. They rounded up the loose ends of the state's case by identifying all of the letters, cards, writing, etc., prepared by Leopold and Loeb in the working of their plot to kidnap the Franks boy and get $10,000 ransom from his wealthy father.

Enormous photographs of the type on the machine on which the ransom letter was written had been prepared, and similar evidence prepared by the experts, but it all went for little, for the defense counsel, Clarence Darrow, blandly waved it all aside and said:

"We admit it all. No cross examination."

The photographs of the type on the machine and the similar evidence prepared by the experts, attracted the young defendants, and they examined it all with all the detached air of spectators, whispering among themselves. It appeared to their student minds.

The state made rapid progress today toward closing its case. When at noon adjournment came at 12:10, only a few witnesses remained to be examined before the state of the state against the boys is completed, and Crowe said he would probably conclude by tomorrow.

Report of Aliens

SPENDS MILLION IN 3 DAYS
LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Can a man spend a million in three days?

W. A. Gibson, Australian theatre owner, did it when he spent that sum here for motion picture rentals.

Throngs Struggle to See Loeb-Leopold Hearing

The Loeb-Leopold trial is out-drawing all other "shows" in Chicago. Curious throngs stand in line for hours and fight to get into the small courtroom where Judge John H. Caverly will decide whether the youths must hang or serve the rest of their lives in prison.

Above is a view of the head of the long line of persons within the courts building, eager to see the slayers, who are (right, above) just back of their attorneys, Clarence Darrow (left) and Benjamin Bachrach. Aliens are flocking to the trial, too. At right are two of them, William A. Krohn (left) and Dr. H. D. Singer (right), discussing the case with Milton Smith (center), assistant prosecutor, in the courtroom.

The Outlook in Europe

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Sir Josiah Stamp, author of the accompanying article, is one of the leading British economists and financiers and was a member of the Dawes committee. Sir Josiah had an important part in the drafting of this committee's report and his views are authoritative and important.

LONDON, July 28.—It sometimes appears that features of fundamental and far-reaching importance in any particular situation are also the points upon which immediate interest is most intense. But, perhaps, it would be true to say that more often those questions upon which attention is for the moment focussed are for an incidental or transitory character, and that the forces which matter in the long run are working beneath the surface of public notice. For example, at the moment these words are being written the franc may be tending either to rise or to fall in response to the pull of political and commercial circumstances of the day, but that is of little importance in determining the underlying factors in determining the future of French finance. In the same way the immediate restricted position of German industry is of little significance compared with the relation between her obligations and her economic powers in the long run, and the influence of those obligations upon her development.

In my judgment, at the present time, the three most important underlying factors determining European prospects are:

(a) The reparations settlement and what logically follows from it.

(b) The French budget.

(c) The gold policy of the Federal Reserve Board of the United States.

Settlement Important.
The importance of the first step in the German settlement upon the lines at present being agreed is that it makes also possible a long sequence of quite different steps of great moment. It will have, of course, its own immediate value in relieving the extraordinary money stringency in Germany—a country which with all the equipment for great production, with unredacted hours of labor, wages kept within economic possibilities and a scheme of taxation heavy enough to make a balanced budget, has factors for safe development, but where the full action of those factors is owing to the circumstance of the past two years, circumscribed by the shortage of current credit. A settlement of the Peace Treaty obligations over a reasonable period of years, unlocks the door to the present monetary stability. This leads at once to the possibility of getting rid of inflation arising because of governmental difficulties. This again leads to a sufficient prospect of stability of credit and currency to enable an expansion of credit facilities, it is that at least the French pro-free from real danger, to accompany industrial development.

The next series of consequences is that there will be introduced into the public and commercial economy of other nations, particularly in relation to Germany, in place of vain hopes, political promises and "make-believe," in other words, the unknown or uncertain factors in budgetary receipts are reduced in number.

To establish governmental finance still further on facts and not fancies, some more definite understanding about interrelated debts is required. That is a second line of consequences which should flow from the German settlement. When the program of international obligation will also be susceptible of firm negotiation, and one more item will be transferred from real danger, to accompany industrial development.

U. S. Business Eager to Sell Goods Abroad

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The growing interest of American business men in export trade is reflected in the fact that during July the Department of Commerce received more than 125,000 inquiries regarding foreign trade openings.

Business men, both those of the inland cities, and others of the Pacific, Atlantic and Gulf coasts, indicated their desire to find an outlet for their goods abroad.

In 1921, when the first records of commercial inquiries were kept, about 30,000 letters were received by the department. The figure grew rapidly, having reached a maximum of 131,000 inquiries in May of this year.

Officials said that they expected the indicator of inquiries to start up again within a few months.

ferred from the realm of contingency and doubt to the realm of accountability and fact.

In the framing of the French budget unconscious self-deception will no longer be possible. The idea of contingent receipts from Germany must be replaced by a definite program which no prudent Finance Minister could transgress. The credit of France in relation to overhanging obligations can be placed on a definite basis. The recently evinced disposition of the French to tax themselves adequately (in practice as distinct from theory), though it is a reaction which has evaporated somewhat with the passing away of a panic-stricken or price-touched feeling which arose through the slump in the franc, will be put to the true test of events, and we shall see whether the French are in earnest in the taxation problem. We may be in a position to see what is the real long-run value of the franc, which at present is not determinable. Certain it is that at least the French provincial peasant is awake to the fact that the franc is no longer a franc, in the sense to which he has been habitually clinging, and that a very considerable part of his past savings has actually gone and has been devoted to avoiding that unemployment which besets other countries in that adverse process may be possible. We shall then see two of the largest European countries, well on the road to that kind of certainty that business contracts which form the bases of all civilization and progress. So far as Italy is concerned, our satisfaction at her new success with her national budget is qualified by some doubt as to her political stability. In Austria, despite unfortunate escapades with the franc, the rehabilitation of national and commercial finance has been successful beyond expectations. Czechoslovakia will slowly recover from her excess of zeal in pursuit of financial virtue—the process of a too rapid deflation having brought about troubles different in character from, but just as intense in degree as those existing in countries where inflation has brought about its own Nemesis. Poland has, at any rate, gone so far as to seek good financial advice. Altogether, too, there is now a better prospect that the

MAYOR HINKSON TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

High Blood Pressure Causes City's Executive to Become Ill at Eagles' Picnic

Mayor Hinkson was taken to Memorial hospital last evening, after he had been taken ill at the Eagles picnic and had gone home for a rest. A physician was called and states that his illness is due to high blood pressure. Considerable alarm was felt by his friends when they heard the news, but reports from the hospital this morning are that he is getting along nicely. Police Chief Starkard talked with him and says that he is feeling good and hopes to be out in a day or two.

Engineer's Bravery Believed to Have Prevented Many Deaths in Train Wreck; Sixteen Injured Recovering

REACH CITY, O., July 28.—Harry Johnson, 40, engineer, of Canton, is dead and between passengers on a Wheeling & Lake Erie passenger train which crashed through a burning trestle, one mile north of here last night are recovering in a Massillon hospital today.

The lives of many of the 90 passengers being carried on the train are believed to have been saved by Johnson's "sticking to his post," who died with his hand on the throttle.

The engine and two of the four coaches of the train were carried through the structure, falling into a creek 30 feet below.

Both coaches burned after all the injured and other passengers had been saved.

"The trestle is on fire, you jump off here," James West, 38, fireman, Zanesville, O., declared. Johnson ordered just as the burning framework came into view. West was injured when he jumped.

List of Injured.
The injured taken to Massillon City hospital were:

James West, Zanesville, Ohio, fireman.
George Reed, Fresno.
Ed Boyd, Fresno.
Edwin Miller, Fresno.
J. A. Mapes, Coshocton.
A. L. Norman, Coshocton.
J. S. Moore, Fresno.
M. MacPherson, Chillicothe.
J. R. Miller, Coshocton.
R. L. Daugherty, Coshocton.
Edgar Carson, Fresno.
Grover Huss, Coshocton.
Mrs. Laura M. Hartley, Canton.
Charles Stuart, Coshocton.
John Belemasky, Fresno.
William McDonald, Zanesville, the conductor, and Orva Slars, Chillicothe, a passenger, were cut and bruised. They were treated by physicians at Beach City.

Bridge Collapses.
Engineer Johnson was prevented from seeing the fire until it was too late to stop the train because of a sharp curve.

The engine had almost crossed the bridge before it collapsed. It rolled down the bank dropping into the creek thirty feet below.

Panic spread as fire reached the coaches and it was necessary to break windows to allow the passengers to escape.

Relief trains and ambulances were rushed from Brewster division headquarters of the road, and from Massillon.

The conductor of the train, Wm. McDonald, of Zanesville, was uninjured.

AMHERST SUED FOR $5,000.00

The village of Amherst was made defendant in a suit filed in common pleas court today by George Keller. The plaintiff states that a natural water course runs through his property. The village has installed a system of storm water sewers that empty into this watercourse. A number of sanitary sewers are also allowed to empty into it. The village is also proposing to add additional territory to the tract now being drained; and the plaintiff claims that the increased flow of water has overflowed his land, and the stench from the sewers has caused his family to become ill. He asks $5,000 damages, and an injunction restraining the village from connecting up any more sanitary sewers with the water course.

ADEQUATE, PROMPT REPARATIONS ARE DEMANDED IN NOTE

ELYRIAN SHOT BY HOLD UP MEN

L. C. Colson Shot Through Wrist Saturday Night, But Made His Escape From Footpads

L. C. Colson, 112 Homer St., was held up and shot by two highwaymen Saturday night while on his way home. Mr. Colson was on East Bridge St. near the Martell Packing Co. plant when he passed three men standing on one side of the walk. Colson was carrying a pall of paint, and states that two of the men ran up beside him and ordered him to throw up his hands.

At first he thought they were fooling, and laughed, but one of the men with an oath made a second demand. Colson dropped the paint, and made a motion as if to run, when one of them fired. The bullet struck Colson in the left wrist passing through it, and inflicting a slight wound on his right breast. He kept running and made his escape to a near by store and the police were notified.

He states one man was a six footer, and the other a little shorter. Both wore caps, white shirts and no coats. The vicinity of the hold up and the railroad yards near by were searched, but no trace of the men could be found by the police.

WARRINGTON, Mass., July 28.—William Oldham, Warrington engineer and ex-soldier, has constructed a midge all-steel boat, twelve feet long, in which he intends to cruise across the Atlantic in August.

This strange craft has taken two and a half years to construct. It is built like a submarine, with six water-tight compartments, and is equipped with sails. The only means of propulsion will be a pedal arrangement, worked like a bicycle connected with the screws.

Oldham estimates the voyage at forty days, during which time he will rely on canned foods. He will sleep in the foretime and navigate at night.

Twenty years ago he built a similar boat, but was unable to make the voyage. The present craft he built entirely by his own hands.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—

Withdrawal of American diplomatic representatives from Persia unless that government makes adequate and prompt reparations because of the killing of Vice Consul Robert Imbrie at Teheran was threatened today by the United States government in one of the most blunt and outspoken notes that has ever been issued by the state department.

Must Pay for Life.
The maintenance of diplomatic relations between Persia and the United States, said the American note, are dependent upon the according of "adequate protection to their respective nationals and to their official representatives."

The note was handed to the Persian authorities at Teheran by Joseph Saul Kornfeld, the American minister, and consul Imbrie's immediate superior.

Payment of reparations to Mrs. Imbrie, widow of the vice consul, and paying of the expenses of sending a United States battleship to Persia to bring Imbrie's body back to this country for burial were demanded in the note.

"The government," the note declared, "that the continuance of its diplomatic and consular representation in Persia will be dependent upon the action which the Persian government may take in this case to vindicate the fundamental principle of international law and to bring about a settlement upon which international intercourse is predicted." (The reference is to mutual guarantees of protection to the Nationals of the other countries.)

This government, it was stated by Minister Kornfeld, "awaits such action to supplement the steps already taken by the Persian government. It cannot overemphasize the seriousness of the view which is taken of the present situation."

May Recall Minister.
State department officials declined to discuss the Persian situation, in addition to making public the note to the Persian government. It was indicated, however, that the situation is considered to be so grave and important in its bearing upon future events, that President Coolidge would not hesitate a moment in withdrawing recognition from Persia and recalling Minister Kornfeld.

One of the battleships now in European or Asiatic waters will be sent to Persia to bring back Major Imbrie's body. The presence of this vessel in Persian waters, it was pointed out, will serve to make it clear to the Persian authorities that this government is prepared

E. Gasser Stars in 5 to 0 Victory at South Amherst; Each Team Garner Six Hits

SOUTH AMHERST, July 28.—After several set-backs the Amherst Sandstones came back on Sunday and triumphed West Salem to the tune of 5 to 0.

E. Gasser together with the assistance of several others were instrumental in the defeat, Gasser going after everything that came his way and getting several of the prettiest catches of the day.

Each team bagged six hits but the quarry town boys made theirs count the most, Sam Mast, former Worcester college star getting two hits as did George Heiser.

Takas, Schact and Garver were the leading features of the game.

AKRON SEMI-PROS AND WILDER TEAM IN CLOSE BATTLE

The baseball fans at Riverview Park were accorded a fast and sensational fielding game Sunday afternoon when the Wilder Cigars defeated the Akron Semi-Pros, also known as the Richmond Cleaners, by the score of 3 to 1.

Elyria scored all their runs and half of their hits in the first inning when Nichols was safe on an error. Ambrose walked and Chapman doubled followed by singles by Reynolds and Forbush. Ordinarily it would have been good for more runs but sensational fielding by the visitors throughout the game kept the local speedsters tame.

The visitors were helpless under the masterly pitching of Nichols, who kept the six scattered. Akron's lone run came as a gift Nichols' error gave Ruble a life. Cable sacrificed and Ruble registered on Murphy's double to center.

The game was exceptionally fast, taking about one hour and 15 minutes. The game was over in such time that most of the players and many of the spectators journeyed to Cascade Park arriving there during the third inning of the Moulton Candies. White Auto shop team set to although this game was scheduled to start half an hour before the Riverview Park tilt.

Both teams exhibited a brand of sensational and spectacular fielding.

The Wilder Cigars are set for the game with the Michigan champions here next Sunday but Manager Evans announced that he would not permit Cioffe, former Chicago White Sox player to twirl against the locals.

The following Sunday, August 10, the Wilder Cigars and the Richwines will clash in the first game of a series to determine the city championship. The teams appear to be evenly matched (on paper) and it is conceded that the game will attract the record crowd of the season.

"Y M" PLAYGROUND LEAGUES IN CLOSE FINISH FOR TITLE

The Y. M. C. A. Playground Leagues are in a close and some great ball game, being played by every team.

At the present writing it is hard to try to pick the winner of the league which is due to wind up some time the middle of this coming month but every team seems to have a good streak and from this indication any team might step out and finish on top of the heap.

At the start of the hostilities the Ely team was supposed to top the list but the Garford crew soon put their hopes in to discard and then they did the same thing to the Gates team. Of course they then had high hopes and along came the Hamilton team and knocked them out. To show that they really meant business, the week before the Gates team they walloped the Ely team and they have been going strong ever since. Still the have the strong Roosevelt team to meet and they are just good enough that they might upset the dope bucket.

These games are played on the different school grounds and the teams go by their community name. They are scheduled to start at 6:45 p. m. and seven innings are played.

The Junior League also is putting out some extra hard games and the interest is running high in all of the schools. It is conceded in this league to pick the team that is more likely to win out in the championship race for they are all playing some real ball games. The Franklin team started out good but it seems as though they are dropping down in their last couple of games and then the Gates took a lead off only to find defeat. The Hamiltons are pulling off more of the surprise stuff than their brothers out even they have been defeated and so it goes with all of the other teams who have been playing as good as gamblers.

This week's games in the Senior League offers some stiff competition and some team is bound to lose. Tomorrow night the Ely plays the Roosevelt at Ely. Gates plays Hamilton at Gates. McKinley plays Garford at Garford. Thursday night of this week will be used to play off two of the postponed games of the last round and that will leave but one game in the first round postponed list. The game scheduled for Thursday are Roosevelt vs. Hamilton, at Roosevelt, and Gates vs. McKinley, at Gates.

The Newest Giant Killer Is Jimmy Ring, Who Stopped 'Em Dead

A few days ago the Phillies and Giants hooked up in New York for a doubleheader. The Phillies got lucky and a fizzle in the first section, four of their pitchers being hammered into several kinds of fancy ash trays by the New York swatters.

When the second game began Manager Fletcher selected Jimmy Ring to halt the onrushing champs. As Ring walked to the mound the first inning several hardened New York fans yelled encouragingly: "That's right Jim, go in and get yours."

Ring got his but not what the fans meant. For the Red hero of the ill-fated 1919 world's series shut out the mighty Giants, the first time they had been left helpless this season in seventy starts. The regular sluggers, Kelly, Snyder, Young, Frisch, Meusel or all had managed to collect just five hits. Two fierce looking pinch hitters had wasted time going to bat. Several things made it a very satisfying victory for Mr. Ring.

One was the fact that his triumph occurred within earshot of the distance of his native haunts and the sandlots where he learned baseball, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Another was that it had been said around New York that the pitchers of all the eastern clubs were dunk soup for any guy with a New York uniform.

Still another was that Jim still carries a large desire to get even with the Cincinnati Reds. A year after he had stood the baseball world on its ear Garry Herrmann traded him for a gent with a college yell name, Eppa Jephtha Rixey.

"My name may not be a poet's one but it has a nice ring to it," murmured Jim quite often.

McGraw Judgment Substantiated. Lastly, he made it clear once more that he is the ace of the Phils pitching staff. He proved to John McGraw that the latter has the right hunch last winter when he wanted to buy Ring and Carlisle from the Boston Braves.

The baseball world—the major league part of it—had heard of Jimmy Ring when the Cincinnati Reds and White Sox clashed in fall of 1919. Jim had been a baseball since 1913 but he was very far, statistically speaking, unless mileage was considered. He had started with Empire City semi-pros in Brooklyn in 1913. The year he pitched the Dodgers game, a nice ride, saw some scenery and then was a Lowell in the New England League. The Yanks grabbed him in the spring of 1915 then sent him to Jersey City. That one year he pitched in the Kew-Forest League, showed Ring how to hold a ball before he had had a chance to get his teeth brushed in the New York State League.

Then came his chance. In the spring of 1917 Christy Mathewson, then managing the Reds, looked him over, kept him for the season and then sent him to Buffalo, only to recall him to a training camp and then to a training camp to join the Southern association club. The war ended that league's activities in mid summer and Ring sent back to Cincinnati.

He had won only 10 games and 9 for Pat Moran in 1919 when a season ended. Many of his feats had been hardluck affairs. He lost five or six games by one run. He had earned the name of being courageous so Moran sent him into the fourth game of the series. Ring proceeded to stand the White Sox on their heads.

The next season he won 17 and lost 16 games, only to find himself traded to the Phils.

In his three full campaigns there up to this season he had won 50 and lost 53 games. This was a hopeless outfit.

Ring is generous enough to give Mathewson credit for making him a good pitcher. He says his main stock in trade was a fast ball until Matty took him in charge in the fall of 1919. The old master showed Ring how to hold a ball properly to get an effective curve and then saw to it that Ring mastered the art. One more tribute to Matty's greatness.

LORAIN KROHNS DEFEATED BY SHAMROCKS

SPORTS DONE BY BROWN

Four of the men who are playing a big part in the winning pace of the Pittsburgh Pirates are setting are serving their first term with the Pirates. The four are Glenn Wright, Emil Yde, Ray Kremer and young Cuyler.

Wright, of course, is the star shortstop for whom the club paid Kansas City some $40,000. Kremer is the pitcher purchased from Oakland in the Pacific Coast League. Yde was bought from Oklahoma City after he had starred as a hurler and slugger with the western outfit. Cuyler, an outfielder, was grabbed from Peoria in the Three-Eye League.

These, with the veteran members of the squad, are giving Pittsburgh some real baseball. And the fans there haven't given up hope of the team giving them a pennant this season, so firm is their faith in McKeech and his men.

A. Wallis Myers, editor of the new edition of Ayley's lawn tennis almanac, points out that this season marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of tennis, as it is now recognized. He says that fifty years ago Major Wingfield took out a patent for a device in football they forgot to issue the following brief edict to the players:

"Keep your shirt on."

For one of the reasons now advanced for the failure of the idea to work out properly is that players get their shirts mired.

When the moguls of the Southern Association decided to try out the experiment of numbering the players of each team as is done in football they forgot to issue the following brief edict to the players:

"Keep your shirt on."

For one of the reasons now advanced for the failure of the idea to work out properly is that players get their shirts mired.

AMHERST DEFEATED LORAIN CARDINALS

AMHERST, July 28.—The Amherst team defeated the Cardinals of Lorain Sunday in a well played game, 4 to 2. Hovey pitched well for the Cardinals, but the heavy hitters on the home team got to him and slammed out enough hits to win. There was a good crowd in attendance.

CHURCH LEAGUE RACE GROWS TIGHTER

First Church and St. John's Lutheran to Play Off Abbreviated Game of Friday Evening

This week's game in the Y. M. C. A. Church twilight baseball leagues brings the Church league nearly to a close and the closer the tighter the race looks.

Last week Monday the St. Paul and St. Agnes could not play due to the bad condition of the diamond on that day. Then on Wednesday the Grace Lutheran's took on the Church of Christ and it so happened that this game fell on the Grace Lutheran's annual picnic day and to make it a successful day all around the Lutherans could do nothing else but to defeat their friendly rivals by a close score. Then on Friday one of the best games of the season was booked between the league leading teams, the First Congregational and St. John's Lutheran. The game was called before the regulation innings for a game had been played on account of darkness and this means that the game must be played over unless a protest is acted upon favorably for the St. John's who protested on account of the game not starting on time and the game being called on that account. This protest will be acted on by the league officials in a few days and if acted upon favorably means that the two above teams must play one more game due to a tie game and if decided against the St. John's it means that two more games will be played between them. At any rate the St. John's and the First Congregational are playing some great ball and may be the best team in.

This week finds the St. Agnes and Church of Christ playing to night. Wednesday the Methodists take on the St. John's Lutheran and on Friday night Grace Lutheran plays the St. Paul's. Here are three good games and worth the time of any fan to see. All of the games are played at Cascade Park and start at 5:45 p. m. and finish near 8 p. m.

Tagging The Bases

The Yankees lost a chance to regain the lead when the White Sox scored four runs in the ninth and noosed them out 7 to 6. Hoyt and Shawkey failed to stem the tide.

Tigers into camp, 4 to 2. The race tightened when Washington beat Cleveland, 4 to 3, and tied the Yankees for second place. O'Brien won his eighth game since joining the Senators.

The other National league clubs were idle.

Choose a roof that is permanent and attractive

PUT an artistic roof on your home. The more attractive it is the more it adds to the appearance and value. But don't forget this! Unless your artistic roof is permanent, unless the shingles always lie flat, it cannot give lasting protection.

You can have, not merely initial good looks in your roof, but permanent protection by selecting Carey Asphalt Shingles. The distinctive blue-black, rich red or cool green color is not surpassed in decorative value. They grow more pleasing as the years go by and the roof is never marred nor its service impaired by curling shingles.

Freedom from curling is absolutely assured and permanence of protection made unconditionally certain by the Carey Asphalt Shingle because it is made by the Carey process, a method of manufacture so perfect, so uniform, that every shingle of the millions produced by it is worthy of the name.

Carey Asphalt Shingles come in three colors, Blue-black, also Red and Green. Carey Ready Roofing and Shingles are on sale at Lumber and Building Supply Dealers. Ask your dealer first, if he cannot supply you, write or phone us.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY SIN

Margaret Widdemer, writing in the August Bookman, assails what she calls the "bogy of narrowness." She attacks, with a sledge hammer, the prevalent attitude toward intolerance as the greatest of all crimes so that merely to be charged with it, however falsely, has been sufficient to cause numbers of worthy souls to run to cover and sanction all manner of silly practices. "At least," she says, "there always were and always will be certain things which should not be tolerated, and to believe this now is to be considered narrow, if not ridiculous."

With this statement, she, in common parlance, hits the nail on the head. Many people are so broad minded that they are thin in spots. Today to be broad-minded is the aim of many intellectuals. They poke fun at Main Streeters and Babbitts. They fail to conceive that there can be a greater aim in life than to regard without prejudice, in an entirely "open-minded" way, the man who, to give his soul free expression, runs away with another man's wife and also runs away from his own responsibilities as a husband and father. And so scathing have been their attacks upon "narrower" people that many of the most intellectual ones of them have been cowed and aim to be liberal rather than moral.

There is much to be said for intolerance of some things. In her closing paragraph she advocates an attitude of defense of our ideals and principles which it might be well for some of us to practice when we are tempted to display liberality at all costs.

"Can it be that if those of us who are not Jews, Scientists, or Catholics were to stiffen a little, as these do, when our code is assailed; if we were even to rise up and hit the bullying coster of unmorality over his head, hard and intemperately and inexcusably; can it be that our cause would be won, and we freed to be, unblamed, as frankly right minded as in other days?"

TOO MANY SUICIDES

Notices of five suicides or attempts at suicide appeared in one paper the other day. In four of the five cases, the suicides were people under thirty and in the fifth, was a young man of thirty-five.

Statistics, which we noted the other day, indicate that the number of suicides has not increased in the past year. We are glad that is the true condition but it is sad to read that five young people felt that life was not worth enduring. It indicates an utter absence of optimistic philosophy in their lives. Sober reflection, an honest looking at facts, a reasonable philosophy has helped many an individual through life who never heard of the carefree optimism of Pollyanna. Practically every one who has reached an adult age has had moments of bitter, intense discouragement but they cling to life. What a pity that someone didn't show these young people that there is much to live for, that there is joy in life. There are books, there are flowers, there is love, (for three of them had loving parents), there is hope, there is the daring freshness felt after a peaceful sleep and there is youth. God had spread treasures at their feet but someone had failed to show His treasures to them.

A REMEDY FOR PNEUMONIA

Today, pneumonia stands out as one of the most deadly of diseases. It has often been called the old person's friend, because it works so rapidly and painlessly. But its toll on middle life is appalling.

The announced discovery of a remedy for this dreaded disease will be hailed with great satisfaction and joy. Dr. Lloyd B. Felton of the Harvard Medical School has found a serum which is reported to cut down the fatalities from this disease twenty-five or fifty per cent. This, applied to a disease which carried off 90,000 people last year, will be hailed as one of the beneficent discoveries of recent times.

It is encouraging to note the continuous progress which is being made in the sphere of medicine. Diphtheria is no longer dreaded. The discovery of insulin for diabetes and anti-toxins for a number of other diseases leads us to hope that soon all the dread diseases that waste mankind will cease to exist.

Prevention medicine is the greatest field in modern scientific study, and the work of the various foundations like the Rockefeller foundation and others of lesser note have become the greatest benefactors of mankind.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL

The refusal of the British Government to agree to the building of the tunnel between France and England jars miserably against its other protestations of pacific aims. Premier MacDonald has frequently stood out against a war-like demeanor on the part of the Government and against anything which might be construed as a step prompted by the thought that at some time England might war against another country.

Complained with other professions of an international attitude and horror of war has been the Government's friendly attitude to France which has aimed to give the impression that the greatest amity exists between the two countries. The decision regarding the tunnel is baffling. The tunnel could so easily be rendered unusable in case of a war that it is difficult to understand the necessity for the decision to frankly say that the plan is impossible because it would lay England open to attack from an enemy is a blunder, especially since France would be at the other end of the tunnel.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON
Ever since you were a child you have been told about a "land of promise." The Bible tells the story of Moses, who came to the land of promise that he could see into it, but he could not enter it. There is a land of promise for you if you have the courage to enter it—courage and the willingness to make sacrifice. How seldom we realize that there is such a land—a land of peace and content—and that it is so near we. We think of it as for the fortunate ones, for the lucky of the earth. It is for all who want it badly enough to enter it, to live it and to possess it. Think that over very carefully.

Do you know the history of 100 healthy men, all of them 35 years old? You should know it, and think about it. At the age of 35, five have died, 10 are wealthy, 10 are in fair circumstances, 40 have moderate means and 35 have saved nothing. At the age of 45, 16 have died, three are wealthy, 65 are barely self-supporting, and 16 are no longer self-supporting at all. At the age of 55, 20 have died, 61 are dependent upon children, relatives or charity, eight are self-supporting and only one is wealthy. And now what has happened to these 100 average men at the age of 75? Sixty-three have died (60 left no estate).

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

CHEMISTS NOW WARNING ON WASTE, DISEASE AND POVERTY, SAYS CHEMICAL SOCIETY HEAD

War on ignorance has been declared by the chemist, says Dr. Leo Henrick Baekland, of New York, president of the American Chemical Society. Waste, disease, poverty, misery, sorrow and narrow-mindedness are the broad which chemical science has singled out for attack, Professor Baekland says.

"The outbreak of the war compelled the uninformed public to realize the importance of the chemist in the United States, and that the words chemist and pharmacist are not synonymous—also that Germany was not the only place on earth where chemists may be born or raised," Professor Baekland declares. "German chemists had been remarkably advertised, but it came to be known that several other lands, some of them much smaller in size and population, showed a very favorable comparison with that country in their contributions to chemical progress."

"At the beginning of the war, when there was a shortage of dyes, it was held as a reproach to our chemists that they had not developed an aniline dye industry. But the main reason for this was that for many years our legislators had been 'taken in' by adroit propaganda, which made them believe that Germany was exclusively suited for this industry, and which led them to vote unfavorable tariff laws."

"The war is over now—and the chemist is back on his job. The kind of war he performs is a war of peace, where he wears no uniform, although sometimes he risks his life as much as in the trenches. "His war now is against waste, disease, poverty, misery, sorrow, narrow-mindedness—a war against ignorance, which breeds all of these calamities. While he is waging this war, his strength, his power for good should not depend exclusively on knowledge. Knowledge alone is a two-edged sword sometimes very dangerous to its possessor."

"The human race has suffered as often from knowledge without idealism as from idealism without knowledge. It is the task of our schools, our colleges, our universities to teach this to our graduating chemists; it is the duty of our chemists to work and live accordingly."

"Along this line of effort, what every chemist should strive for individually, our American Chemical Society must aim at collectively. It can do many things in that direction. It can help to implant this gospel in our educational programs. It can teach that greater power, greater wealth, claim higher responsibilities, greater service, whether the possessor be an individual, a corporation, a chemical society or a nation."

"It can teach Congress better to appreciate the great value to the nation of the scientific department of our government and to insure better treatment of many men who are doing excellent work there, although their usefulness is little understood by the masses."

"It can enlighten the public at large about the full scope of chemical science. The average man becomes acquainted with the achievements of chemistry only as they have led to visible results in our industries. But he does not know that there exists today in the United States a numerous group of men, little known outside their own field, who are building up the very foundations on which future progress of our science and all useful application depend."

SHE DON'T SEEM TO THINK as much of 'em as she would new ones—guess I'll have Ross tell her about the value of antiques.

ALL HE HAS HIS HEART SET on is something from King Tut's tomb—can you imagine an ambition of that kind?

NINETY DOLLARS FOR A picture frame. He calls it "wall-nut" but it sounded more like chestnut to me.

BIT OF COURSE ONE MUST be up on antiques to appreciate them, so it must be all right. It is with me.

THESE ARE WEALTHY. The remainder of the living, 34, are dependent on them.

SURRENDER is sometimes just as important and important for us as to win it out. It depends on the situation. So much of our struggle over and about things that are trivial, that are not worth while. We make ourselves miserable by perseverance in non-sensibles when all we need for peace of mind is surrender. Some of us are doing the very thing that is most to do for the good of our souls.

WORSHIP without warmth isn't worth much. There are some churches which have a solemn air of reverence and dignity. They are the atmosphere of worship is right, but nobody near feels any better and WARMER for being in them. There should be something warmer, something illuminating, about the practice of religion.

LIFE insurance for their employees amounting to more than 250 millions of dollars has been taken out by 34 of the leading railroad companies of America. The Southern Pacific Railway Co., alone, has a group insurance contract covering $125,000,000. More than 250,000 employees are covered in insurance policies taken out by railway companies. Faster and faster grows the realization that the hope of industry—the hope of human society—is the "sense of value" among CO-WORKERS.

FRANK B. KELLOGG
When the allied conference on reparations, in London, needed a man for the delicate role of mediator, it was a famed "trustbuster" from Minnesota who got the job.

FRANK B. KELLOGG

When he became the envoy to London last year in succession to George Harvey, a "mild reservationist" friend of the League of Nations and a supporter of the world court succeeded an irreconcilable at the most important ambassadorial post in Europe. Kellogg is of the type of extreme caution.

Frank Billings Kellogg was born at Potsdam, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1856. When nine years old he went to Minnesota with his parents, where he was educated in the common schools and was admitted to the bar in 1877.

Kellogg first bungled out his single in Rochester, Minn., but removed to St. Paul in 1887, where he has since lived and practiced law.

After representing the United States in its battle with the "trusts," he was elected to the U. S. senate as a Republican for the term 1917-23, and was defeated for reelection by Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor candidate. Then came his appointment to London.

COLUMBUS, July 28.—Ohio's $24 building and loan associations increased their aggregate assets $116,633,450.28 during the fiscal year ending June 30, last, compared with a total gain of $83,812,442.33 the preceding year. J. W. Tannehill, state superintendent of building and loan, has announced. Assets of all Ohio building and loan associations for the fiscal year total $764,794,409.93, Tannehill stated.

RAISING SUNK GERMAN FLEET

July 23.—Tremendous difficulties are being experienced by the salvagers now engaged in raising the sunken German fleet at Scapa Flow, Scotland. The fleet is in a position to judge which it will be approximately seven years before the fleet is raised, and only if the present difficulties are overcome.

Notwithstanding the most up-to-date and powerful apparatus employed, the divers are finding it a hard task to clear the sunken vessels of the several years' accumulation of marine growth, some of which is stated to be four to six inches in thickness and of immense strength.

The ships have been found lying in different positions. The "Graf Zeppelin," the second largest ship, being in an extremely difficult position. Most of the vessels have settled in several feet of ooze and sand, and its clearing will take the divers some months.

TODAY'S BEST STORY
Henry Haddock, real-estate agent, Athens county, didn't want a licking. He openly admitted it.

Suspicion, however, enshrouded the manner in which Henry avoided that "licking."

This is what Henry told the officers:

"I was walking down the road when I met a fellow who said if I wanted some 'white mule,' I told him I didn't. Then the man threatened to lick me if I didn't take a jug of the stuff because he had more than he wanted, he said."

Henry said he took the jug and then the officers nabbed him.

It cost Henry a $15 fine.

BILLY WHISKERS

The chums were planning to attack the boys.

On came the boys, whooping and hallooing with all the power of their lungs. But when they were within twenty feet of the trees and bushes that concealed the chums, they jumped out at them. The leader stopped in his tracks, and as he picked himself up he saw a funny sight—a big boy running straight for the lake with a big, black cat sitting on his shoulders scratching the shirt off his back. Button never moved, but stuck to him as the boy swam far, far and farther out. At last it seemed to occur to the boy to dive, which he did and Button, hating the water as all cats do, jumped for a big rock that was sticking out of the water. There he sat and meowed for Billy to swim out and carry him to shore on his back as he had often done before. But Billy was nowhere in sight. After trying to find out where Billy and Button had gone, but no answering call came back. He sniffed around but could get no scent of them.

Then all of a sudden he saw a boy come out of the lake and run up the shore. He saw the boy and on a dead run, thinking that perhaps he would lead him to some boys who might have captured Billy. He was running with his head down when all of a sudden he pitched backward into a dry well. What was his surprise on opening his eyes after he shook the dirt from himself staring into Billy Whiskers' eyes!

"How in green gooseberries did you get here?" he asked.

(But we shall have to wait till tomorrow to hear about it.)

Button was meowing as loudly as he could for Stubby to swim out and rescue him, but the wind was in the wrong direction to carry his voice to Stubby. Stubby looked around and given up a howl trying to find out where Billy and Button had gone, but no answering call came back. He sniffed around but could get no scent of them.

THEATRES

RIVOLI—The fine picture, "Let Not Man Put Asunder," is now being shown, featuring the return of Pauline Frederick to the screen. This picture gives her a great opportunity to display her talent as an emotional actress, and Lou Tellegen, who plays opposite her, is also in a favorite role. There is an entire change of program including a new comedy.

GRAND—"Daughters of Today" tells of life in a college town, where jazz, "petting parties" and frivolity reigns. The story of a country girl who goes to college, meets up with the latest set, and has a narrow escape from disaster. The story is startling, and speaks in the language of the modern youth of America. No one should miss this picture and the lesson it gives. Also a new program thru-out.

DREAMLAND—"The Critical Age," a tale of a youth and a maid caught in the whirlpool of politics. It is a treat to see this picture. Also a good comedy and feature picture.

Some few have criticized "Daughters of Today" as too sensational. It is our belief that the opinion of the great majority is the highest tribunal—that since never ending thousands—old and young—all classes—mothers with their sons—fathers with their daughters—have stood in line day after day to applaud and commend the moral without being shocked by the frankness of the portrayal of life today—then "DAUGHTERS OF TODAY" is a GREAT AND GOOD PICTURE.

COMMISSIONER CANDIDATES SPEAK TUESDAY EVENING

OBERLIN, July 23.—Sixteen candidates on the primary ticket for county commissioner will speak tomorrow, Tuesday, evening at 8 o'clock in the New high school auditorium under the auspices of the Oberlin League of Women Voters. Each speaker will present his platform. Everyone is welcome.

DIPHTHERIA CLINIC PLANNED WEDNES

OBERLIN, July 23.—The third conference for the prevention of diphtheria will be held Wednesday, July 30—in the old high school building at one o'clock by the Oberlin health department, supervised by the state department.

Miss Ruth Paddock, health nurse reports that a total of 94 came for the toxine anti-toxin treatment last Wednesday. Sixty-one of these had been there before, hence for them it was a second treatment and for the 33 remaining it was a first treatment. All who had had one or two treatments are to return Wednesday for a second or third and if there are any who wish a first treatment, Miss Paddock asserts that they are also welcome.

A child welfare conference is being planned for the latter part of this week in the James Brand House on North Main street. Arrangements are not wholly completed.

S.S.S. keeps away Pimples

THERE are thousands of women who wonder why their complexions do not improve in spite of all the face treatments they use. They should not continue to wonder. Eruptions come from blood impurities and a lack of rich blood-cells. S. S. S. is acknowledged to be the most powerful, rapid and effective blood cleanser known. S. S. S. builds new blood-cells. This is why S. S. S. roots out of your system the impurities which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, acne, blotches, eczema, tetter, rash. S. S. S. is a remarkable flesh-builder. That's why underweight people can quickly build up their normal weight, plump cheeks, bright eyes, and "glow."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

PRESERVATION OF GARDEN CROPS

BY J. J. VAUGHN
Supervisor of Gardens

Berries that had dried naturally upon their vines and bushes first suggested the idea of drying foods. The methods of preserving, by pickling in brine and vinegar and by salting were discovered by accident. Preserving by canning was the result of chance and was practiced a long time before it was learned why heating and sealing in air-tight jars prevented spoiling.

After it was learned that foods spoil and decay because of the presence of fungi, molds, and bacteria, the question of the preservation of foods became very simple, for all that was necessary was to find some way to kill these plants or to prevent their growth.

The growth of destructive agents in dried fruits and vegetables is prevented by taking away the water necessary for their growth. The germs are not killed, but they become harmless.

In pickling, salting, preserving, and jelly-making, preservatives are used because yeast, molds and bacteria do not grow where salt, sugar, vinegar, or spices are used.

In canning food two things are accomplished; all molds, yeast, and bacteria—their seeds or spores—are destroyed by heating; by enclosing in air-tight containers more germs or their spores are prevented from entering.

In storing vegetables and fruits in indoor and out-door cellars, in pits and cold frames they may be preserved for a limited time.

Surplus food should be conserved because the use of fruits and vegetables is essential to good health, and good health is the most valuable asset of any human being. Since vegetables and fruits are quite expensive, and at some seasons of the year somewhat difficult to obtain, the Home Economics Association suggests that all families, where possible, do so, preserve enough of such perishable food during the growing season to last through the winter.

The drying method has some advantages over the canning as follows: the bulk is decreased, less space is required for storage, no sugar is required; expensive

Use RESINOL for a clear skin and good hair

Resinol Soap used regularly for the shampoo tends to keep the hair lustrous and the scalp free from dandruff. When necessary a serious accumulation of dirt and scales may be removed by using the Resinol Ointment on the scalp some time before shampooing. Avoid drugs.

PERSIAN PROBLEMS NOW IN HIS HANDS

The task of restoring calm in Persia, now in a troubled temper in consequence of the situation caused by the mobbing to death of an American consul, is the principal problem facing the new premier, Reza Khan.

Containers are not needed; products may be kept for an indefinite time.

Some preliminary steps in drying are, food in proper condition when gathered; dipped in cold water, cut into small pieces or shreds, spread out on boards or tables ready for the sun or artificial heat to cause the loss by evaporation of the moisture contained in them.

Dried products should not rattle or crack when poured together; they should have a leathery and pliable feeling when pressed in the hand.

The vegetables most commonly dried are sweet corn, lima beans, string beans, tomatoes, spinach, carrots, and Brussels sprouts.

The one-period cold-pack method is recommended as the best for canning vegetables and fruits in the North.

RAISING SUNK GERMAN FLEET

July 28.—Tremendous difficulties are being experienced by the salvagers now engaged in raising the sunken German fleet at Scapa Flow, Scotland. It is in a position to judge that it will be approximately seven years before the fleet is raised, and only if the present difficulties are overcome.

Notwithstanding the most up-to-date and powerful apparatus employed, the divers are finding it a hard task to clear the sunken wrecks of their several years' accumulation of marine growth, some of which is stated to be four or five inches in thickness and of immense strength.

The ships have been found lying in different positions, the largest, the second largest ship sunk, being in an extremely difficult position. Most of the vessels have settled in several feet of ooze and sand, and its clearing will take the divers some months.

TODAY'S BEST STORY
Henry Butcher, resident of Millfield, Athens county, didn't want a licking. He openly admitted it.

Suspicion, however, surrounded the manner in which Henry avoided that "licking." This is what Henry told the officers:

"I was walking down the road when I met a fellow who asked me if I wanted some 'white mule.' I told him I didn't. Then the man threatened to lick me if I didn't take a jug of the stuff because he had more than he wanted," he said.

Henry said he took the jug and then the officers nabbed him. It cost Henry a $15 fine.

Billy Whiskers
By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

The chums were planning to attack the boys.

On came the boys, whooping and hallooing with all the power of their lungs. But when they were within twenty feet of the trees and bushes that concealed the chums, they jumped out at them. The leader stopped in his tracks, too dazed and surprised to move at seeing a strange goat come flying out of the bushes straight toward him with head lowered to butt. He scarcely had time to know he was surprised when he was hit in the pit of the stomach and sent sprawling in the sand fifteen feet away. As he picked himself up he saw a funny sight—a big boy running straight for the lake with a big, black cat sitting on his shoulders scratching the shirt off his back. Button never moved, but stuck to him as the boy swam faster and farther out. At last it seemed to occur to the boy to dive, which he did and Button, hating the water as all cats do, jumped for a big rock that was sticking out of the water. There he sat and meowed for Billy to swim out and carry him to shore on his back as he had often done before. But Billy was nowhere in sight. After butting the boy he had disappeared as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him.

As for Stubby, he had chased all the boys up town, first biting one boy's shins and then attacking another until he had driven them howling two or three blocks from where they started. When he saw he had gotten the boys so far away, he stopped chasing them and went back to see what Billy and Button were doing. But when he reached the old spot neither Billy nor Button was anywhere in sight. All he could see was a black object on a rock sticking out of the water. It looked like some one's wet muff or old coat. He did not know that that same wet muff was his own beloved Button.

Button was meowing as loudly as he could for Stubby to swim out and rescue him, but the wind was in the wrong direction to carry his voice to Stubby. Stubby looked around and even set up a howl, trying to find out where Billy and Button had gone, but no answering call came back. He sniffed around but could get no scent of them. Then all of a sudden he saw a boy come out of the lake and run up the shore. He started after him on a dead run, thinking that perhaps he would lead him to some boys who might have captured Billy. He was running with his head down when all of a sudden he pitched headlong into a dry well. What was his surprise on opening his eyes after the shock to find himself staring into Billy Whiskers' eyes!

"How in green gooseberries did you get here?" he asked. (But we shall have to wait till tomorrow to hear about it.)

Billy Whiskers

Button was meowing as loudly as he could for Stubby to swim out and rescue him, but the wind was in the wrong direction to carry his voice to Stubby. Stubby looked around and even set up a howl, trying to find out where Billy and Button had gone, but no answering call came back. He sniffed around but could get no scent of them. Then all of a sudden he saw a boy come out of the lake and run up the shore. He started after him on a dead run, thinking that perhaps he would lead him to some boys who might have captured Billy. He was running with his head down when all of a sudden he pitched headlong into a dry well. What was his surprise on opening his eyes after the shock to find himself staring into Billy Whiskers' eyes!

"How in green gooseberries did you get here?" he asked. (But we shall have to wait till tomorrow to hear about it.)

PRESERVATION OF GARDEN CROPS

BY J. J. VAUGHN
Supervisor of Gardens

Berries that had dried naturally upon their vines and bushes first suggested the idea of drying foods. The methods of preserving, by pickling in brine and vinegar and by salting were discovered by accident. Preserving by canning was the result of chance and was practiced a long time before it was learned why heating and sealing in air-tight jars prevented spoiling.

After it was learned that foods spoil and decay because of the presence of ferments, molds, and bacteria, the question of the preservation of foods became very simple, for all that was necessary was to find some way to kill these plants or to prevent their growth.

The growth of destructive agents in dried fruits and vegetables is prevented by taking away the water necessary for their growth. The germs are not killed, but they become harmless.

In pickling, salting, preserving, and jelly-making, preservatives are used because yeast, molds and bacteria do not grow where salt, sugar, vinegar, or spices are used.

In canning food two things are accomplished: all molds, yeast, and bacteria—their seeds or spores—are destroyed by heating; by enclosing in air-tight containers more germs or their spores are prevented from entering.

By storing vegetables and fruits in in-door and out-door cellars, in pits, and cold frames they may be preserved for a limited time.

Surplus food should be conserved because the use of fruits and vegetables is essential to good health, and good health is the most valuable asset of any human being. Since vegetables and fruits are quite expensive, and at some seasons of the year somewhat difficult to obtain, the Home Garden Association suggests that all families, where it is possible to do so, preserve enough of such perishable food during the growing season to last through the winter.

The drying method has some advantages over the canning method: the bulk is decreased; less space is required for storage; no sugar is required; expensive containers are not needed; products may be kept for an indefinite time.

Some preliminary steps in drying are, food in proper condition when gathered; dipped in cold water; cut into small pieces or shredded; spread out on boards or tables ready for the sun or artificial heat to cause the loss by evaporation of the moisture contained in them.

Dried products should not rattle or crack when poured together; they should have a leathery and pliable feeling when pressed in the hand.

The vegetables most commonly dried are sweet corn, lima beans, string beans, tomatoes, spinach, carrots, and Brussels sprouts.

The one-period cold-pack method is recommended as the best for canning vegetables and fruits in the North.

WELLINGTON MOURNS TRAGIC DEATH OF ROY PAUL, WORLD WAR VET

WELLINGTON, July 28.—Funeral services for Roy Paul, who died from the results of the fire truck disaster in this village, were held at his late home on Barker street at 10 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Paul was born June 7, 1891 at Cleveland, O. He came to Wellington fourteen years ago and was employed those years in the Wellington Telephone company.

During the late war he served in the Signal Corp in the 54th Company, 6th Division, and saw a year of foreign service at the front. He was a member of the American Legion. His comrades had charge of the funeral services and accompanied the body to its final place at Woodland cemetery, Cleveland, where he was buried with military honors.

He leaves his mother, a sister, Mrs. Nellie Carpenter, and a nephew, Charles Carpenter, to mourn his early death. Mr. Paul was one of the finest young men in Wellington. Quiet and unassuming in his manner, an earnest worker and true friend and he leaves the whole community mourning his death.

He died on duty—a soldier's ideal death—while serving as a volunteer fireman on Friday afternoon. The fire truck struck a tree while driving into the driveway of the Kent Warner farm. Mr. Paul was fatally hurt and two other firemen were slightly injured as the result of the accident.
